Two Caughley 'Locre Sprigs' butter boats

Two Caughley geranium leaf form butter boats painted with Locre Sprigs circa 1788-95, unmarked, 8.2cm long

This pattern is known in France as Decor à la Brindille which translates literally as 'twig decoration'. This is an uncommon pattern by Caughley which has only been encountered on few pieces such as eye baths, coffee cans and butter boats, as presented here.

Condition Report

Slight nibbles to one of the boat's rims.
